This excursion begins with a tour of Rio de Janeiro's city center, highlighting the Sambadrome—where samba school parades take place during the world's most famous carnival—the pyramid-shaped Metropolitan Cathedral (featuring an internal diameter of 96 meters and a height of 80 meters), and the historic Cinelândia area, home to the Municipal Theater, the National Library, and the Legislative Assembly building. After exploring the city center, the tour continues through the Flamengo neighborhood toward Urca, the location of another of Rio de Janeiro's iconic symbols: Sugarloaf Mountain (Pão de Açúcar), a name derived from the Guaraní language meaning "high, pointed, and isolated mountain." It was at the foot of this peak that the city of Rio de Janeiro was founded by Estácio de Sá in 1565.

The visit to Sugarloaf Mountain is made in two stages via a cable car - the famous bondinho - suspended by steel cables. The first stage connects Vermelha Beach to Urca Hill, located at an altitude of 215 meters; from here, one can see Guanabara Bay and its islands, Flamengo Beach, Corcovado Hill, and the bridge connecting Rio to Niterói. From Urca Hill, the second part of the ascent begins, heading up to Sugarloaf Mountain at an altitude of 395 meters, where visitors enjoy a unique view of Copacabana Beach, the Santa Cruz Fortress, and various beaches in Niterói. After spending time on the observation decks at the summit, the descent is made using the same cable car. Your transport will be waiting at the base of the mountain to take you back to your hotel.
